Requiring a person to choose between male or female based on their "gender at birth" is harmful to our citizens, cruel, and a massive waste of tax payer dollars. In addition to those people who are transitioning from the gender they are assigned at birth to the one they see themselves as, there is also an estimated 1.7% of the US population that is born as intersex, without a clear gender identity at birth. This is the most cruel and least effective thing our government can do. As someone who has always aligned with their gender at birth, I cannot even begin to fathom why those who do not match their apparently gender at birth are being questioned. As a woman in the US this does nothing to protect me and harms others.
