The United States Constitution does not give power to the president, federal or state government to create legal definitions for sex or gender. Inhibiting citizens ability to correct gender markers on federal documents is a gross abuse of power and a key tenant of fascism. Preventing travel and seizing passports is unconscionable, unconstitutional and gravely concerning. No federal office in this nation should have such power, and the president clearly does. Acts of this nature should concern all citizens. The Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs should immediately revoke this executive order and cease the seizure of passports, and should continue to honor the wishes of the citizens of this country who simply want to travel safely.
