We're changing a policy that no one had a problem with, only the GOP politicians. This is specific to targeting people who are not hurting anyone. This isn't a real issue and the change will cost more to implement than just maintain the current status quo. It's also unconstitutional which is why we are doing this in the first place. Eggs cost an arm and a leg but you want to spend more money on things we don't need to have happen because not only is this illegal but it works and no one is getting hurt by this other than unaffected GOPers who are trying to be able to see people genitalia. This is a gross overstep and unneeded, it'll be expensive due to litigation, implementation and people not renewing their passports because of the current administration's behavior.
