To my understanding, this Executive Order that would necessitate this mass changing of passports is less about “Biological Truth”, and perhaps moreso a reactionary campaign move. I have met intersex people who have taken hormones, who are not transgender or nonbinary, but due to biological permutations they simply do not conform to the somewhat arbitrary markers of masculinity/femininity without the assistance of medication. And, pardon my naïvete, but wouldn't it cost more and withhold the freedoms of more people to force a whole demographic to change their necessary information, thus putting them under undue scrutiny (in the case of transgender individuals who have progressed their medical transition), than it would to simply maintain the current system that works unilaterally?

Is the goal of this to make the system better? Or is it something else?
