Americans should have the right to request an accurate passport with a name and gender which reflects their current name and gender identity. Anything short of this will create confusion documentation issues and chaos when traveling. This is plainly a safety issue for transgender Americans and non-trans Americans alike. No one should be forced to navigate international travel with documents that do not reflect the person showing up at customs. It's patently absurd to ask men and women to navigate international travel as the opposite gender due to simple errors in documentation on birth certificates. Quit it.
