

Author Full Name : AnonymousReceived Date : 02/21/2025 01:52 PMComments Received :

Hello, I hope you are having a good day/evening.

I am writing, as a taxpayer in and citizen of the United States, to notify that this policy directly disenfranchises me and many people I am close to. There are no specific gains to be made by denying already approved gender markings being applied to passports, and only losses, with the resulting confusion at foreign and domestic entry-points sure to cause a nuisance and potentially putting a great number of American citizens at risk of harm by foreign nations. The only purpose of this policy is political posturing - to be sure that our administration is solidly against the "transgender threat." It is a disgraceful waste of time and resources to be retroactively removing the designations already applied to and functioning well for people that only want to cause less problems for and assist in expedient clearance and sorting of identities through government checkpoints. Furthermore, buckling under the pressure of our administration on this issue will only open the gates to more extensive compromises to government function and violation of personal rights. At this point, we must rely on our federal agencies to hold the line on this issue: do not comply, and if possible actively resist.

Thank you very much, and I wish the reviewer luck for the future.

Anonymous citizen