

Author Full Name : SarahReceived Date : 02/21/2025 02:17 PMComments Received :

Gender that is assigned at birth is based off of external genitalia. Who a person is, what they do, and how they choose to identify themselves is so much more important than body parts. There is no credible or proven threat to US security or society for that matter for respecting an individual's identity. There is no need to identify a person's external genitalia on a US passport aside from making transgender and intersex individuals lives more difficult.