I have few words for the barbarians who couldn't write a coherent EO to save their lives. You disgrace my country. You dishonor yourselves.

I will set aside constitutionality for now as well, but again, the embarrassment of it all, to be lorded over by fools.

The purpose of a passport is the effective identification of an individual. The Department is well aware how these changes will impact its capabilities; this is a regression to a previous procedure already found wanting.

The EO's insistence of marking a form of gender which it claims to exist "at conception" is so farcical that it must impress directly on the intelligence and ability of all who wrote and approved the text. "Sounds about right" does not meet any degree of necessary rigor. The Department has received only impossible instructions to follow and should pursue no changes to its policies in turn. The insufficient construction of this Order is difficult to overstate without very many, very unkind, words.

The premature effort to implement this incompetent EO with the reversion of this form by the Department is also not within the law. This 30-day period is insufficient for public comment as a result. Under the Paperwork Reduction Act, the premature reversion of the form is illegal. This is the incompetent work of a toothless order. I deserve better from you, as all Americans do.

We are sinking into ignorance. I pray the Department is prepared.
