

Author Full Name : Anonymous

Received Date : 02/21/2025 03:26 PM

Comments Received :

The gender marker on passport applications is completely irrelevant for modern identification and should be removed entirely. The gender marker adds no novel information to the passport that cannot be deduced through the name and picture, but rather an idea of what the individual's genitals looked like at birth. Passports are not a source of medical information and have no need to include information on genitals.