Biological sex at birth does not cover individuals who are born as intersex from a medical standpoint.

Documentation being changed from F/M/X to F/M is inconsistent with the purpose of passports, that being the ability to verify your identity and nationality for international travel. If someone has transitioned or begun transitioning and their documentation does not match, it is reasonable to assume it would lead to conflicts for some United States citizens during travel to other countries.

Removing options that more accurately represent people at the time of renewal will lead to inconsistencies with renewed passports, new passports, and existing passports. In many cases birth certificates have been amended through a judge to represent a persons current gender identity, this change in documentation will lead to a greater number of delays and inconsistencies as a result.
