Anything protecting women only goes against equal protection clause. If women need protecting so do men. Anything that fails to give dignity to people in the chromosomal minority (ie intersex) is shameful. Anything that wastes taxpayers money should be stopped by doge. I have an idea, if you want to protect women, why don't you fund rape kit processing and maternal health initiatives. Oh because this is not about protecting women but controlling them.

I am xx woman and literally don't care about other people using the same bathroom as me as long as they don't pee on the seat and wash their hands, which excludes most men. I fail to see how these checkboxes will protect me from that.
