Why does a sex OR gender even need to be on a passport? Unless everyone is being strip searched at every border, assumptions are always being made based on appearance/presentation. Intersex people exist. Clerical errors are made on cis -gendered folks passports (I know of one myself). It's the picture that needs to match. That's the identification part. And if someone identifies as male or female or neither, updating their passport to say otherwise doesn't change their identity. It just makes customs agents job that much harder and more time consuming.
