I write in regard to the above and wonder if there are any scientists who are reviewing the changes to this process. As far as an applicant's biological sex at birth, there are distinctively more than 2 identifiers. Statistically there are individuals who are born intersex. Some may be aware and others not. However, it is a disservice to consider that the choices are only binary. I enclose the following link that will help to explain this concept. <https://pmc.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/articles/PMC9355551/>

I urge you not to use M and F as the only way a person identifies themselves.
