This change makes no sense. It leaves no room for intersex people whose bodies at birth don't fit into M or F. It also harms trans people who should be allowed to be identified based on their own identity. This will also make TSA officials confused when people who have been living as their gender for a long time have a marker that neither matches their exterior presentation or their own identity. It will make TSA inefficient and harm officials and everyone else in line. Having someone's sex on their passport is unnecessary, someone's passport photo is the most helpful tool in identifying them and biological sex adds nothing to the identification process. This change is motivated only through transphobia.
