Trans people are human beings and deserve to feel validated in their identities. Forcing them to identify as their birth gender is only going to make them more resentful and angry. Where is the America that claimed to be for its people? Who gets served justice and happiness by being forced to put an "M" or an "F" on their passport, regardless of how they look or feel. And what about people who have already transitioned? Are you going to make trans woman who look like woman still identify as male? How does this not increase the amount of passport fraud because you can look like a man but be a woman and be forced to put female on your passport. This isn't the freedom my grandfather fought to preserve. I thought being an American meant we could live our lives free and enjoy the liberty that comes with American society. Instead trans people are being treated how the Nazi's treated Jews. You want these people to have to identify themselves so you can hunt them down and harm them. History repeats itself, and America is the new fascist dictatorship to hit the history books. Who is served by this change? Who's lives are made better? All this does is make good people suffer more because you couldn't leave them alone to live their lives in peace.
