

Author Full Name : Anonymous

Received Date : 02/24/2025 11:10 AM

Comments Received :

The removal of the ability for transgender individuals to change their marker at any point in time during their transition is a blatant erasure of existence, a stripping of identity, and for many people, an infringement on their right to travel. This removal is blatantly unconstitutional, as the right to self-identify and the right to travel should be unalienable no matter the circumstance.