It is unreasonable to require people's passports to list their sex assigned at birth. This means that transgender people whose other legal documents have been updated to reflect their gender will not be able to have a passport consistent with their other documents. It is also immoral to use identification and travel documents to support a systematic campaign to harass and oppress gender minorities. This is not simply a small change on a piece of bureaucratic paperwork. It is a piece of needless cruelty and part of a larger program to take away the rights of transgender and gender nonconforming people.
