The political attempts to strip the rights of trans Americans by forbidding recognition of their transition/gender is blatantly discriminatory, unsafe, and a waste of the American political machine's time. Transgender Americans are exactly the same as everyone else, there is no danger, no risk to anyone. Transitioning has universal medical approval as being the best and only care for trans people. Putting political roadblocks in the way of people fulfilling this beautiful process that heals their soul, fixes depression, and lets them love their best, most fruitful life is simply a political attempt to oust trans people from society. Blocking transition or recognition of it will only result in pain, depression, suicidality for these citizens, and the effort to do so is merely a demonization of an innocent micro-minority to fearmonger and achieve political ends for another group of people.
