This executive order is discriminatory against trans and intersex individuals by forcing gender markers to align with assigned sex rather than a person's actual gender. This not only erases intersex people, whose bodies may not fit the M/F binary, but also creates unnecessary confusion for TSA and customs agents when a passport's sex marker doesn't match the person's appearance. Moreover, gender or sex markers on passports are redundant—passports already include a photo, which is a far more accurate tool for identification. There is no justification for enforcing outdated and harmful policies that put marginalized communities at risk.
