This proposed change aims to comply with EO 14168, which attempts to make the natural world comply with the narrow world view of one set of idealogues. This change is not materially different than forcing someone who colors their hair to list the original color on the passport, despite the fact that doing so means the passport no longer reflects reality. However, unlike hair color, forcing the passport to list a gender that does not reflect reality can put people's lives, livelihoods, and freedoms at risk every time they try to travel. It's the first step towards a dictatorship, and I find it unconscionable that you would take such a step.
