Banning people from updating their passports to reflect a gender transition is wildly illegal, unconstitutional, draconian, cruel, singularly hateful, and many many other things. But for the purposes of this comment, it's one of the most blatantly unconstitutional moves I've ever seen -- the 1st amendment guarantees the right to free expression, which gender identity is, AND the 14th amendment (as well as the Civil Rights Act) forbids discrimination against people who are members of protected classes -- which gender identity is one of. You could not come up with something more legally wrong if you tried and these changes should NOT go into effect.
