Every person should have the right to change their gender markers on their passport applications. Having passport renewals denied due to the applicant being transgender or intersex is absurd, and having passports confiscated from transgender and intersex individuals is even worse.

“Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.”

Not following this policy and discriminating against transgender and intersex individuals is not only absurd but unconstitutional, regardless of an executive order made by the current transphobic, sexist president. I thought this was supposed to be the land of the free, a country for the people and by the people.
