

Author Full Name : AnonymousReceived Date : 03/09/2025 08:34 PMComments Received :

Whenever someone applies for a passport, they provide enough legal identification markers. Making it difficult for anyone to get a passport and therefore travel to another country will limit travel, both to and from the United States and other countries. This will be too costly to implement over the current way to produce a passport. Make the process simpler and this will be much easier to use. This also discriminates against wide demographics of people, forcing them to prove themselves beyond what should be necessary.