

Author Full Name : AnonymousReceived Date : 03/10/2025 11:30 PMComments Received :

This regulation would cost a great deal of time, money, and labor for no tangible benefit. It does not matter what gender or sex is listed on someone's passport, because that is not useful identifying information - you can't tell by looking at someone what their gender or sex might be. The purpose of a passport is to serve as an identifying document, and gender and sex are completely irrelevant to that. It is wasteful and useless to spend valuable time and government resources on this policy change - to say nothing of how it denies US citizens the right to travel and possess a passport, freedoms which every American ought to be able to access without this bureaucratic nonsense getting in the way.