I urge you to reject this policy change and the discrimination that it would institutionalize.

Every U.S. citizen deserves to have a U.S. passport that matches who they are, so that they can safely travel, get a job, and interact with law enforcement without fear of harassment and discrimination.

It is a burden on all passport applicants to be asked to give evidence of our biological sex at birth. It wastes government staff time to be required to research the information, and they should not be tracking down this kind of very personal information.

Do not take away the rights of trans, intersex, and nonbinary citizens to obtain a passport that reflects who they are. If it does not reflect who they are, then it is not an accurate identification document.
