I personally know two people who will be negatively impacted by the proposed changes. One is a colleague and a transgendered woman who travels extensively for her work. A passport that misidentifies her will be a substantial hindrance, leading to confusion and difficulties at home and abroad. In addition, my nephew is a transgendered man who has two children. I was there during his transition, which followed a painful childhood and youth but has resulted in a far happier, loving parent and productive citizen.

This proposed change unfairly targets a few people who have already led traumatic lives and do not deserve to have more unhappiness thrust upon them.
