In January, President Trump issued an executive order attempting to deny that transgender, intersex, and nonbinary people exist, and denying them equal rights and treatment under the law. But transgender, intersex, and nonbinary people are our friends, our neighbors, our coworkers, and our family members. I do not support this type of discrimination in my country. I urge the State Department not to take away the rights of trans, intersex, and nonbinary citizens to obtain a passport that reflects who they are – a right held in the United States for over 30 years.

It is a burden on passport applicants to be asked for evidence of biological sex at birth, and a waste of government time and resources to require State Department employees to research this information.

Every citizen deserves a U.S. passport that matches who they are to ensure they can safely travel, obtain employment, interact with law enforcement, and go about their daily lives without fear of harassment, undue scrutiny, and discrimination.

The U.S. government should seek to reduce the discrimination that trans, intersex, and nonbinary people experience, as research has found that these experiences lead to stress, PTSD, depression, and suicidal thoughts (Wilson, et al., 2017

We rely on our federal government to be thoughtful, well-reasoned, and fair to all Americans – this new policy provides no thought, reason, or fairness. Instead, it targets a small population of the United States and denies them identification documents they need to safely travel and go about their lives.

Please reject this policy change and let transgender, intersex, and nonbinary Americans access accurate and useable passports that match who they are.
