

Author Full Name : AnonymousReceived Date : 03/19/2025 10:25 AMComments Received :

As a cisgender woman, President Trump's executive order 14168 does nothing to protect me. All it does is harm transgender and nonbinary individuals, alongside cisgender individuals who do not conform to stereotypical gender roles or styles. I do not believe changing the "Gender" category name to "Sex" is helpful, nor is it cost effective. Also, forcing people to put their assigned sex at birth is also not helpful, as people (all people, regardless of whether they are cis or transgender) change as they age. There are real people who look a certain way that contradicts what their assigned sex at birth would claim, this could be because they transitioned or they have grown up to be otherwise gender-non-conforming. Also, much of this current discourse seems to ignore the fact that there are people who are intersex, born with differing sex characteristics. They are not being properly represented here either, as it forces them into a binary that they fall outside of. It is erasure.

All these changes will do is put people under scrutiny by TSA and other officials. This, I think, would also waste time and resources for all people involved. It will also cause damages to the people it affects.