This is another instance of trying to regulate trans people out of existence. The gender marker on a passport is a representation of the person traveling, designed to assist tsa in properly identifying the individual in transit. Restricting this and assogning gender arbitrarily not only makes federal employee's jobs harder for no reason, but it's another step of trying to undermine a group of Americans to serve an oppressive agenda. This doesn't benifit the average American. This is a waste of taxpayer money to make a small selection of people feel worse. I'm strongly opposed to this kind of regulation under the guise of "defending people". Bigotry takes many forms and this is one of them.
