IMMI comment to Docket No. NHTSA-2025-0025
Agency: National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA)

IMMI is the leading supplier of passive safety products for heavy vehicles, and continuously strives to improve safety for the occupants of these vehicles. IMMI is responding to NHTSA’s request for comment on the topic of data collection from heavy vehicle crashes.

As indicated in the request for comment, NHTSA has been investigating crashes and collecting crash data for decades. These data systems such as CISS and SCI have been instrumental in the development, implementation, and evaluation of safety countermeasures – particularly in light vehicles. This data has not been collected for heavy vehicles.

IMMI affirms that the expanded data collection to include heavy vehicle crashes is needed, and that the data likewise will be instrumental in the advancement of safety for those occupants. This data collection will enable greater understanding of crash modes, injuries, and injury causation in heavy vehicles, which in turn will enable greater advancements in heavy vehicle occupant safety.
