Subject: PRA Comments Regarding Revisions to FCC Forms 323 and 323-E, (Broadcast Ownership Reports)
Attachments: Radio Programming.pdf

Dear Friends:

In Report and Order and Fourth Further Notice of Proposed Rule Making, MB Docket No. 07-294, FCC-09-33, released May 5, 2009, the Federal Communications Commission expanded its collection of data on the race, gender and ethnicity of broadcast owners in an ill-conceived effort to “foster diversity in broadcasting.” Of course, the collection of this data will do absolutely nothing to foster diversity in broadcasting. Indeed, if the FCC is realistic in its evaluation of diversity matters, it must conclude that (a) production and presentation of diverse programming on broadcast stations is driven by the need of broadcasters to attract audience ratings, not by the race, gender or ethnicity of broadcast station owners, (b) the broadcast industry, as it presently exists, presents the public with a vast array of diverse programming , and (c) there is no legitimate action the FCC can take to change the race, gender or ethnicity of broadcast owners [because favoring or disfavoring broadcast owners on the basis of their race, gender or ethnicity is patently illegal].

It is reasonable to assume that certain ethnic and racial minority groups are underrepresented in broadcast ownership. It is also reasonable to assume that economic injustice has contributed to this situation. However FCC ownership regulation cannot be an effective tool to address economic injustice in our society. Someone once observed that the great issues faced by the FCC involve choosing whether to adopt the position advanced by one wealthy group over the positions advocated by other wealthy groups. No matter which position is ultimately adopted, it is that of the wealthy and only the wealthy. No one but the wealthy has the financial ability to provide the public with a viable commercial broadcast service. Certainly no one else has the funding to create and present attractive television and radio programming capable of attracting significant audiences.

Commercial radio and television stations are not mom and pop businesses. The most significant broadcast properties are owned by large media companies funded by banks, insurance companies, pension funds, venture capital groups and the like. Until disadvantaged ethnic groups and minorities have access to the funding needed to participate in successful broadcast ventures, i.e., until they, themselves, are among the wealthy, there is no meaningful action the FCC can take that will foster their presence in broadcast ownership.

There are numerous steps our society can and should take to address economic inequality and the lack of opportunity disadvantaged groups face every day. However enhanced broadcast ownership reporting is not one of these steps. It is absolutely pointless and will achieve nothing. It proceeds from the false assumption that there is a lack of diversity in broadcast programming and the false assumption that different broadcast owners will, by virtue of their ethnicity or minority status, produce different broadcast programming.

The views expressed above are mine, alone, and are not advanced on behalf of any other individual or entity. I would not express them at all, if it were not for my desire that the FCC direct its energies to areas where it can do our Country some good, where its actions can make a difference to the industries it regulates and the people they serve. Enhanced broadcast ownership reporting is not such an area.

Sincerely yours
Joseph Belisle
