I am NOT for any TPS to be determined by anyone other than the President of the United States. Attempts to bypass the will of the people whom put President Trump in office is disheartening and transparently clear. I do not in any way endorse or promote any person or entity not entitled to have such authority from taking such authority. While I am commenting on the E-Verify, I want to make my opinion perfectly clear. Our President, or his designees, if you than great, decides who can enter USA.

As a business owner for 27 years, in the HVAC Industry, using E-Verify should be restricted to the Business owners not the general public, lawyers, support groups, or non-support groups, outside of their capacity of hiring an actual person, or potential legal or illegal employees. A statement I am responding to is posted below and I disagree with the transparency option for employee. Allowing potentially illegal persons considered for employment to play a game of "concentration" by plugging in potentially erroneous data, potentially fraudulent data, potentially life altering ID theft data, until they get a "match" is contrary to the underlying philosophy and intent of the program itself. Such a practice would only allow more identity fraud and illegal workers to scam and beat the system in order to defraud Business owners, the American workforce, our patriotic government, authorities, employers and legal immigrants with work visas' jobs. It is in my opinion this is a start to get the American workforce strong again and put us back as a cohesive and supportive patriotic nation following the laws necessary for a prosperous and strong American workforce, of ethnicity that are pro American. Similar to the process used by a declined credit card verification process, the document in question most certainly should not "given" back to the applicant when "declined" but confiscated instead, pending legal authorities choosing the remedy. Federal if necessary in sanctuary cities. The same should exists with E-verify. Business owners' in charge of the process without employer access makes the most sense if the intention is to truly consistent with the prevention of illegal workers, fraud and abuse. As the business owners is ultimately at risk for consequences, fines and practices if they're hiring illegals, the advantage should, in all fairness and common sense, also lean our way. Using E-verify for contrary reasons other than to gather as much data as possible, including ethnicity, would allow one more source for data collection and assist the US in protecting legally allowed workers and American Citizens. Anti-American Support groups for illegal immigrants and sanctuary states methods have often been so tweaked towards allowing hidden anti-American change to go un-noticed while being shielded with questionable interpretations of our constitution, used against the very group its meant to protect, the USA and American citizens. Each layer of authenticity peeling away USA protections in favor illegals, and against American's can only be met with resistance. We should not feel immoral or "mean" as the media states for wanting to protect fellow American's first. Instead the contrary, asking immigrants why they came here is the very dream we are trying to protect. Allowing things that stray from that will cause this country to no longer be the place of dreams, but will cause this country to look like the country the fled instead. So while this seems like a small issues, its at the heart of a much bigger safety issue for the country. I feel strongly it would be a tragedy in an already overburdened system where "perception" in the media and mainstream for Business owners and employees alike, is often one, of providing more liberties and protections for illegal immigrants than for Americans, and legal immigrants with work visas'. Having a method to show the picture matches the person standing in front of you is many Business owners wishes, including my own. We want to help our fellow American Workers, and our country Not ISIS.

The use of myE-Verify allow employees the ability to see the information that is being used to confirm or deny their work eligibility. By allowing employees direct access to view this information, myE-Verify is promoting a transparent evaluation process. Additionally, myE- Verify provides an employee with the opportunity to recognize and correct - (MANIPULATE),a mistake in the records that E-Verify uses to determine eligibility before an employee is erroneously denied immediate work authorization. This ability to locate and correct inaccuracies before an employee is mistakenly denied creates a more efficient and proactive system of assessing employee work eligibility. This actually completely defeats the intent of E-Verify, so I strongly disagree with this stance and feel it is only an attempt to scam the system. NO extension to allow entry should occur if contrary to President.
