General Comment

I think that this will be a great program. Veterans deserve to be treated well even after leaving the military. However, this doesn't always happen. By providing an incentive for employers to hire our veterans, the unemployment rates for veterans will continue to go down. Veterans will be able to provide a multitude of assets to different work environments. I think they are inherently leaders and more discipline and will be able to prosper in a variety of work environments. I believe this program will show other employers how hiring more veterans will help their company grow in the long run. As a country, we should always be looking for ways to help our nation's veterans in any way we can.
