

PUBLIC SUBMISSION

As of: 6/7/18 3:04 PM
Received: May 16, 2018
Status: Posted
Posted: May 17, 2018
Tracking No. 1k2-936k-ipj6
Comments Due: July 09, 2018
Submission Type: Web

Docket: CDC-2018-0026
Health Message Testing System (HMTS)

Comment On: CDC-2018-0026-0001
Health Message Testing System (HMTS) 2018-09918

Document: CDC-2018-0026-0002
Comment from (Floyd Lind)

Submitter Information

Name: Floyd Lind
Address: 97424
Email: floydind69@yahoo.com

General Comment

As a person with diffused dercums disease, opioids have been my mobility saver. Its the third rarest disease and the second most painful. Opioids havent given me my life back but they have given me the mobility to somewhat get part back. I dont believe they should be prescribed for spranged ankles and such. When you have a disease like mine they are definitely a huge help. I know my working career is over as I cant stand, walk, or lift my arms for any extended time. They do help enough to putter around for a little while as long as I dont do anything strenuous. My hope is that there will be a cure but until then these are our only option so we that have dercums can somewhat function. Thank you for allowing me to give my perspective.