Bloodborne pathogens are a serious individual and community health risk, so it's vital to keep track of possible exposure including needle sticks.

But enough small talk. The bigger issue is that we have a complete fool in the White House, namely President Tiny Hands. Actually an ignoramus would be bad enough, but President Tiny Hands is also corrupt, dishonest and a sociopath. Plus he insists on wearing an orangutan pelt on his bald spot, even during photo ops such as Trump saluting a N Korean general.

Conclusion: be careful around needles, and be even more careful when dealing with the Trump kleptocracy.
