General Comment

I agree with the idea of CMS intention to collect information from the public. Because it is a best option for any service and company to make it better by having the reviews from the public in this way by having different views and ideas any industry or any type of progress can be achieved. As the agency said under the act of 1995 federal agencies are required to publish notice in federal registration collection of information will allow 60 days for public comment on the proposed action. This idea is very great 60 days are more than enough to make a good decision. In this way they will have enough time to to enhance the quality, technology and utility. This is something, which should be centered around, and the standard has done it. The rule likewise gives an open door on input on various stuff and I believe it's an or more for keeping up the administrations services.
