To whom it may concern,

Currently municipalities requires employees to submit requests or renewal on annual basis (each request and approval is only good for one year). Many patients and their loved ones needs longer term care, such as cancer or Alzheimer's. Is there a way not to add burden on employees to refile all paper work every year when it's continuous condition? Filing paper is stressful and takes a lot of time and burden on employers as well to process them.

I believe we should let doctors decide how long to refile FLMA for each patient. Thank you for considering.
