

Dee Martin is co-head of PRG and a partner in the law firm. She guides corporations, industry coalitions, trade associations and nonprofit organizations through the legislative, regulatory and public affairs aspects of government advocacy campaigns. Dee represents clients on a variety of issues, including energy, the environment, financial services and national security. Her work includes regular advocacy and negotiations with the U.S. Congress and departments and agencies of the Executive Branch of the federal government. As an attorney, she assists clients in responding to agency inquiries and prepares and guides clients through Congressional investigations. She also testifies on her clients' behalf, prepares them for testimony before Congress and government agencies and provides policy-based support for organizations facing high-profile litigation. Dee was named a "Top 40 under 40 Lobbyist" by Washingtonian magazine in 2011. She has also received national media attention as a co-founder of Minute Mentoring®, a women's leadership program.

Christine Wyman is a Senior Principal at PRG specializing in developing policy strategies and implementing them through effective participation in the legislative and regulatory process. Her experience includes advocating for energy, oil and gas and industrial clients before Congress and other federal agencies, including the White House, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, U.S. Department of Energy, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Department of Interior and U.S. Department of Transportation's Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration. Christine joined PRG in 2017 after several years with an international law firm, where she represented clients in a broad range of environmental matters, including defending energy utilities and industrial clients facing government enforcement actions, providing counsel on compliance with federal environmental regulations and advocating for clients' interest through the federal rule-making process.

Robert DeHaan is vice president for government affairs at the National Fisheries Institute, the lead trade association for seafood harvesters, processors, wholesalers, distributors, exporters, retailers, and seafood restaurants. In this capacity he represents the international trade, food safety, and other advocacy priorities of NFI's national membership before Congress and the Executive Branch. He has had several opportunities to work with the Trump Administration. He is a member of the CBP customs operations advisory committee working group for forced labor. Most recently, he was named to the USDA-USTR Agricultural Technical Advisory Committee. In this new role he will help support Administration trade policy through technical advice and guidance from the perspective of the commercial seafood industry. Prior to working with NFI, he served in the George W. Bush Administration in a series of trade and transportation positions.

Craig Rexroad

Director, Communications & Corporate Affairs, Thai Union North America

As the Director of Communications and Corporate Affairs for North America at Thai Union, Craig Rexroad is responsible for all corporate and consumer communications, government relations, CSR initiatives, crisis communications and internal communications in North America.

Since joining Thai Union in 2017, Craig has managed the strategic communications planning for Chicken of the Sea's multiple product lines, development of a comprehensive CSR program with national food banks and educational institutions, in addition to representing the needs of Chicken of the Sea's processing plant in Lyons, Georgia to state and national representatives.

Craig was instrumental in the creation and implementation of Sea Change Ignite, a partnership with the Monterey Bay Aquarium, to drive and infuse sustainability practices in Fishery Improvement Projects (FIPs) and aquaculture farms to increase the availability of sustainability seafood to North American consumers.

Craig is a member of the Thai Union North America Crisis Management team and the Chicken of the Sea Executive Leadership Team.

Craig was a member of a team that received the 2018 Thai Union Executive Chairman's Award for "Passionate Value"

Craig holds a Bachelor of Arts in Communications, emphasis in Public Relations from the University of the Pacific. Craig was the recipient of the University of the Pacific Outstanding Communications Alumnus Award (2011).

Dr. Darian McBain

Global Director, Corporate Affairs and Sustainability / Member of Risk Management Committee

As the Global Director of Corporate Affairs and Sustainability at Thai Union, Darian McBain is responsible for implementing change that will drive sustainability through the entire global seafood industry.

Since joining Thai Union in 2015, Darian has taken the company from a commodity focus to a holistic ecosystem approach with a focus on oceans and people. Working within the framework of the UN Sustainable Development Goals, Darian developed and has driven Thai Union's sustainability strategy SeaChange® since its inception. The sustainability strategy addresses many of the sustainability challenges that Thai Union and the wider industry face.

Darian has developed a strong focus on traceability and transparency within the SeaChange® program. Increasingly Darian is looking to new technologies such as blockchain to solve some of the most critical issues within the industry, whether seafood traceability, identification for migrant workers, or even digital payments.

In 2016, working with internal and external stakeholders, Darian launched Thai Union's global tuna commitment. This commitment took Thai Union away from just buying fish, to actively engaging all stakeholders, from governments to fleets to NGOs, to agree and act on a series of activities to protect a fishery and maintain a healthy ecosystem. Committed to transparency, Thai Union published a tuna commitment progress report to publicly share their journey.

She also spearheaded Thai Union's landmark Greenpeace agreement for sustainable and socially responsible seafood, which led to the release of a Vessel Code of Conduct and the vessel improvement program. This was the first global agreement that Greenpeace had reached with a corporation.

In 2016, Thai Union adopted its Ethical Migrant Recruitment Policy, one of the first 'zero-fees' recruitment models regionally. Developed closely with a local NGO, this was globally recognized and encouraged the Thai government to adopt new legislation, eliminating recruitment broker use in Thailand. In 2017 Darian joined the Bali Process Business and Government Forum, representing Thai businesses working toward reducing human trafficking and forced labor. Darian regularly presents on the topic of modern slavery, including presenting at a panel at the 2018 UN General Assembly in New York with the UK Secretary of State and other business leaders.

Darian is a member of Thai Union's Global Leadership Team, the Risk Management Committee and is Chair of the Sustainability Committee.

Darian holds a PHD in global supply chain analysis from the University of Sydney and remains an adjunct to the university's Integrated Sustainability Analysis unit. She has published numerous academic articles and books. Before joining Thai Union, she was Managing Director of the consultancy Blue Sky Green, Sustainable Development Executive for the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency and worked for the UN as well as WWF. In 2017 she was awarded Thai Union's Most Exceptional Effort Award, and in 2018 she was named Edie Sustainability Leader of the Year as well as Ethical Corporation's Responsible Business Leader of the Year. In 2019, Darian was honored in the Vision category of the Seafood Champion Awards at the SeaWeb Seafood Summit.